WAIKATO SOCIETY OF ARTS

P.O. Box 1018, Hamilton 3240. Website: www.wsa.org.nz

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

This year WSA celebrates its 75th Anniversary. A number of exciting events are planned. First I would like to note the passing of Mike Stringfield, a past president and life member of the WSA. I have been impressed by the quality and strength of the people who sustained this society both as president and committee members. We still benefit from their efforts.

The 75 years of history and art exhibition at the museum will be a review of the impact of the WSA on Hamilton and will give a glimpse of the amazing art coming from WSA members over the years. Around the exhibition will be a number of events that the museum and WSA are working together on including speakers, workshops and a production of Campbell Smith's play "Waikato Green." I am grateful to the museum, to Kate, Robin, Leafa, Sarah and many others.

The first events will be the NZ Painting and Printmaking Award and The Right Bank Festival, both occasions which showcase WSA efforts to support artist to exhibit and sell. Later there will be a 75th celebration dinner, a youth exhibition and a member's exhibition at ArtsPost. In addition we will launch our new brochures and have some morning teas and artist talks. The exhibition committee is working out a system whereby WSA can support members into more exhibitions around town. If you would like to be part of the planning contact the Eriko will let us know.

After 2009 there will be a change in the National Contemporary Art Award. WSA initiated the NCAA in conjunction with the museum and Trust Waikato. WSA organized the award and the opening; the museum curated and hung the exhibition. For the past few years the museum has been the principal organizer while WSA acted as advisors and as selling agents. After 2009, WSA is pulling out of an active role in the NCAA. The museum has a vision of a larger and more significant award and a new sponsor has come forward that shares that vision. WSA continues to support the museum in this important endeavour and the Hamilton can rejoice that the opportunity to celebrate contemporary art at the highest level will continue.

As I predicted, the Barry Hopkins' Art Collection is witty, eccentric, mischievous and wonderful like the man himself. One visit or two is not enough so if you haven't been, start now. There are so many pleasures, but the sharpest pleasure is seeing old friends that have been hiding in the basement. It is wonderful to see the Mary McIntyres in Barry's collection while having the opportunity to study the moving and masterful drawings in the Trust Waikato gallery. It is also a particular pleasure to see early and later works by the same artists like the several Michael Smithers. Barry was able so often to spot talent before everyone else.

Finally, I must mention the WaiClay sponsored national pottery award. This is a breathtaking exhibition both in breadth and quality of entrants with the beautiful and the delightful, the strong and the delicate all present. Behind the black curtain is a wonderful experience that explores volume and surface, and plays with form and colour. Again congratulations to the museum for an excellent presentation.

NZPPA ORGANISATION

This year the NZPPA has attracted record numbers. Judge, Dr Robin Woodward is currently selecting finalists from the 280 entries received.

Judges floor talk will be Thursday 19th 2pm at the Pavilion.

So please mark Friday February 20th, 6pm on your calendar for the champagne gala opening to be held at the Gardens Pavilion.

Tickets are available for sale from the WSA office or at the door on the night at $10 per head.

We are currently (and eventually will be desperately!!!) seeking volunteers to assist us with this event in the areas of:

Serving Drinks and Food. We need a couple of adults to help the St Pauls students.

Docents during the exhibition from Saturday Feb 21st until Sunday March 1st each day from 12-3 and 3-6 with an extra session on the Sat of the Festival from 10-12.

Unpackers 8.30am (some later) Mon 16th Feb until done (early afternoon), and hangers 12.30pm Wed until finished.

Should you be available to help in any way possible please contact either:

Maree Glass 021 322575 on 858 3099 or glassm@xtra.co.nz or Janet Knighton on 021 0590028 or 855 9133 or art.hire@xtra.co.nz

With the support of our sponsors this award has grown in strength and is certainly one of New Zealand's most prestigious staged on the national arts calendar.

VOLUNTEERS – REPEAT PLEA

We have a very small Executive Committee this year.

This year, 2009, is our 75th Anniversary and we have many events planned to celebrate the year. This year's Executive Committee is very stretched. So please give us a thought and when the call goes out for helpers step up to the mark. Strangely, volunteering is very rewarding. You meet great people and have great fun. And the jobs are never that onerous.

We particularly need someone to convene the Events and Social Activities sub-committee. Give Martha a call on 07 856 6981.

WSA ART SCHOOL

Welcome back from your well earned holidays. Classes for 2009 start in a few days. We look forward to seeing you.

Policy for the School of Art on Refunds and Credits for Classes

Refunds and credits for art classes are not normally given. However, there are exceptional circumstances that may be accepted by the Administrator as reason to give a credit for the following term's fees or a refund. When this occurs the Art School committee will be informed. The administrator also has the right to transfer students from one class to another when difficulties arise. And if classes are cancelled through lack of students as stated on the enrolment form fees will be refunded.

ANNE KALNINS

RIGHT BANK SUMMER ARTS FESTIVAL 2009

It is a good opportunity for members to show and promote your art. Remember that this is a festival and people are wandering through looking for "bargains". With this in mind the Exec suggest that artists bring only smaller low price items for a fast sale and a quick turn over.

As for last year there will be a $5 charge for those who just leave their work. One hour minimum time on the stand and there is no charge. Larger items should be limited to three in number (although there will be limited space to store a few extra items to come out after others have sold.

Paintings should have no more than a 500mm width or depth. This will be Saturday 28th February 2009 from 10am to 4pm. Artists need to pick up their art works soon after 4pm.

We will need a group of helpers (give your names to Eriko on 839 4481) and a minimum of two working artists on the site (same as last year) so please put a circle about the date and give it some thought.

WSA is stretched for volunteers at this time, as we will be coping with this and NZPPA at the same time. Strong men are needed for both activities!!

MIKE STRINGFIELD

It is with sadness we record the death of WSA, Life Member Mike Stringfield on the 18th January 2009.

WSA pays tribute to a truly great, special and faithful member, who for well over 40 years has with great heart, good humour, and sound counsel helped WSA on it's way to this years 75th Anniversary. Mike joined the WSA sometime in the late 50's as a person who had a great enthusiasm for painting and drawing. He had attended classes by Ida Carey at an earlier stage travelling from Morrinsville to do so, such was his interest.

Mike served as President of the Society for two years in the mid 80's and on the executive committee for many years. He was a valuable committee member and Management member. He took part in all the major decisions providing always a considered balanced view, as the WSA moved from the Studio Gallery, to Ward Park and Victoria Street, and later to Arts Post. Then of course there was the decision to relinquish the Arts Post Galleries to the Museum.

It is remembered that he began exhibiting his work early on in the 60's, or even earlier, and Mike continued exhibiting paintings to the end of his life. He particularly had affinity to watercolour and became known as an excellent landscape watercolourist with his work being eagerly collected from WSA exhibitions and from shows further afield.

Mike's enthusiasm for Plein Air Painting knew no bounds, as he led the WSA. Field Day Painters around the wider Waikato region on day excursions. His knowledge of the district and land owners took the FDP's to many hidden beauty spots. Weekend family groups followed their artist member to Kawhia, Waingaro, Thames, and Coromandel to name some. Directions for travel were accurate and concise.

On these trips newcomers were aided with good advice from Mike on how to cope with painting out of doors. The problems of changing light, strong winds, rain even, what products to use, how to prepare the board and paper, gadgets to help the outdoor artist - Mike gladly imparted his knowledge.

Many have also benefitted from his tutoring in watercolour at the W.S.A. Art School always receiving sound advice given cheerfully. Mike was a true gentleman, a faithful artist friend to many, and we will all miss his cheerful presence in our lives. We all extend our condolences to Joy and hope that she will still take part in functions with WSA where she will always receive a warm welcome.

PLINTH STORAGE – EMPIRE GALLERY CLOSED

WSA is still in need of storage space for a number of plinths etc that have been returned from Empire Gallery who, regrettably, have closed down. If anyone has access to storage space the Society can use for these items, WSA would be very grateful. In the meantime Robin Cuff has his storage area full of WSA plinths etc. We need about the size of half a garage.

An Outline of Northern Australia Aboriginal Rock Art

Barry Smith

With a good Aussie wife you just can't keep away from Australia! In 2008 Catherine and I visited both the Kakadu and Kimberley areas of Northern Australia. We visited the various scenic and wildlife places but by far the most intriguing were the many rock art sites we visited. On previous trips we had seen the rock art in the Carnarvon Gorge in Central Queensland and in the Cape York area. Here are a few impressions of our most recent trip.

Aboriginal occupation of Australia is now known to stretch back for over 60,000 years. Throughout most of that time the aborigines have recorded their lives and culture on the walls and roofs of the countless rock galleries wherever they lived. In most places it is fair to say that they have added to or modified their art. If they hadn't rock erosion would have destroyed the art. What happens is that certain tribes are responsible for the art in their areas and they regularly refresh the rock art. However in some places the art is of great antiquity. Rock art is only one form of Aboriginal art. Other forms are bark painting, desert art, sculpture and body painting.

Subject Matter

As might be expected, the art often depicts activities and subjects related to the hunter-gatherer and cultural activities of their lives. Animals are often shown in 'X-ray' style, not all that unexpected when you consider that the final result of a hunt is to reduce the animal to a skeleton. Human figures and activities are celebrated in the art and often "women's business" and "men's business" are kept in separate locations, as they usually are in aboriginal life.

Female body depicting twins.

Technique

A variety of techniques are used. The simplest is the stencil technique where pigment is taken into the mouth and spattered at an object such as a hand held against the rock. Feet or utensils or weapons may also be used as stencils. Other methods involve the preparation of brushes (by beating Pandanus roots) and pigment (by grinding ochre or other pigments using grinding stones in rock holes). It appeared to us, from the location of some of the art, that scaffolds of some sort had been used to obtain access to sheltered walls. Pigment was obtained from well-established ochre pits, from haematite deposits and from charcoal.

Occasionally blue pigment is seen, this being usually of modern origin.

'Ricketts Blue Painting'.

Kakadu

We didn't get into Arnhem Land but we saw the best art within sight of the East Alligator River which is on its border. At Hawk Dreaming Camp we were led up steep rock, around rocky ledges and into caves.

Usually with a view over the surrounding countryside you could view the art and then look out over the swamp or Eucalypt forest and imagine yourself anywhere between the present and 60 000 years ago.

In some places the art appeared to be 'womens stuff', other places men's activities, evidenced by their activities and their gonads.

In several places the thin stick-like hunting figures, mimi spirits, said to live in the rock cracks, were painted in red ochre. These spirit figures are said by some to have been painted by the mimi spirits themselves and they are said to come out from their rock crack abodes in windless conditions and at night.

Tragedy? Modern Aboriginal art.

Kimberleys

In the Kimberley we experienced the Wandjina paintings. They have a 'spaceman' look about them with large eyes, great bodies, no mouths and auras surrounding their heads. They are said to be powerful creator figures who control rain, storm and floods.

Also present were the characteristic gwion figures (these are also called Bradshaw paintings after the European who drew attention to them) which are very distinctive in either tassel, clothes peg or sash style.

Wandjina Style Art. (note kangaroo at top).

Darwin and other Northern Australian Art

Commercial Aborigine Art is everywhere throughout Australia, nowhere more so than in Darwin.

We were so taken with the Art Museum that we went back a second time. There we saw several good Albert Namatajira watercolours, not traditional art at all but the first successful watercolourist work from the Hermansberg Mission.

There are many excellent examples of bark painting and commercial Aborigine art. Great place for a lunch and cuppa. Or a glass or two!

Go window art shopping in Darwin! There are many excellent galleries. Have a look at the website below, not Darwin but Kununurra (a bit further to the west!) -anything up to NZ$84, 000. Naata Nungurrayi fetched A$207 000 for one of her works at Sotheby's Auction in 2007. Another Aboriginal artist sold a work for A$2.4m in 2007.

ArtNexus Exhibition

The ArtNexus group and their friends held a celebratory gathering in the Chartwell Room of Arts Post.

Their exhibition, which was curated by David Fowler, contained several paintings by WSA members. As might be expected this was an eclectic and pleasing grouping of paintings from a group of artists with increasingly high standards.

Maria Martin Smith at Hamilton and Pompallier "On A Mission"

Members may remember Maria Martin Smith of Hamilton who has been studying art in Wanganui for some years and enabled some of the WSA Printmaking members to see her art on its way to her exhibition in 'the attic' Pompallier House in Russell.

Her exhibition ended just a few days ago and from all accounts it was very successful. Pompallier is becoming a focus

Waikato Bequests Trust

Last year the Waikato Bequests Trust was formed. It has the aim of providing a haven, in Trust, for any bequested art with an agreement between the Trust and the Hamilton City Council.

There is also a plan to protect any financial support offered. Anyone interested can contact the Waikato Bequests Trust by emailing bequests@gmail.com or phoning David Fowler 07 855 9903.

The Inimitable Mr Hopkins

Staunch WSA member, Barry Hopkins' collection was gifted to the newly formed Waikato Bequests Trust last year and this remarkable selection was the first public showing of any of the Trust's collection. What a generous and valuable gift!

This eclectic collection is the result of Barry's passion for art and his collecting habits since his teenage years. It is breathtaking in its size and scope and represents one man's lifelong interest in the (mainly visual) arts. Over 150 items are presented and the collection is a who's who of New Zealand, and especially Waikato art. All genre and media are represented. During the interesting floor talk the day after the opening Barry reminisced about several of the artists and their work. Many of the works are early examples of the artist's oeuvre and as such are of significant interest. Barry stated that his decision making on purchases is quite rapid, something many of us may identify with – when you see a work you either like it or you don't and a private collection represents just that. This representative collection of art speaks highly of the collector's judgement and choices.

Maria's art, besides its own artistic value, has interesting historical connotations. For instance her mezzotints included the early presses from Pompallier, an amazing multimedia based on an early map of the Bay of Islands together with an overlay of red depicting the bloodshed of the time and a rosary constructed of musket balls with a cross made of early printing materials.
